

Marissa Chapman Campbell and Horn family honored by OSU

On Oct. 26, 2011, the Oklahoma State University (OSU) Staff Advisory Council honored the family and relatives of Marissa Chapman Campbell and her children, William, Maizy and Lucas as well as Shane BlueHawk Horn. The Commemorative bricks bearing the names of each person placed in the OSU Formal Gardens marks a permanent site of remembrance.

“This experience is a reminder that life is short,” said Tara Gladden, OSU Staff Advisory Council Public Relations chair, “It is really important to cherish each day as well as family and friends.”

OSU places bricks in the Formal Gardens in honor of employees who have been employed at OSU for 30 years or more. According to Marsha Chapman, OSU financial assistant, “It is a dedication of their existence, a carbon print to the University for family and friends to visit – forever a Cowboy.”

Marta Kochenower, chair of the OSU Staff Advisory Council, welcomed guests followed by an opening prayer. Marshall Gover, president of the Pawnee Nation of Oklahoma, shared how those lost had blessed others who had been privileged to be part of their lives.

Walter Echo-Hawk, Bunky Echo-Hawk, and Pat Leading Fox sang the Chapman Family Song. Herb and Bobby Adson offered a Pawnee Prayer Song. Assistant Chief of the Seminole Nation of Oklahoma Ella Mae Colman gave the benediction.

“This presentation shows what impact our tribal members have had on society,” Gover said. “This family has truly touched the whole world.”
